

Dakheel Ali Al-Dakheel

Position: Main Partner

Dakheel is the main partner of Saudi Group for Accounting and Auditing (SGAA), where he co-established the company in 1982 with fellow main partner Abdulaziz Al-Jasser. Dakheel oversees the direction and supervision of over 70 auditors and professional advisors, boasting extensive expertise in auditing, consulting, and tax matters.

Dakheel has taken on a variety of government and commercial engagements, including advising on business practices and compliance in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. His expertise spans economic feasibility studies, designing organizational structures and procedural frameworks, accounting and auditing for companies listed with the Capital Market Authority, overseeing the establishment of charitable associations, compliance arrangements for business sectors and family-owned companies, as well as restructuring and financial reorganization for distressed corporations

Dakheel has held several governmental and professional positions, including with Arthur Andersen in the United States, where he served as a key member on significant companies at the time. He also worked at the Industrial Development Fund in 1977 as Chief Accountant in Financial Management and at the Saudi Postal Corporation. Dakheel has overseen numerous large, medium, and small companies across various sectors including contracting, construction, services, communications, and information systems. His work encompasses various complex accounting issues. Dakheel's experience includes advising multinational corporations and large family-owned businesses in Saudi Arabia on accounting aspects of crisis management, internal auditing, risk management, strategic planning, and business sustainability.

Dakheel is one of the founding leaders of Saudi Group for Accounting and Auditing, overseeing a company with over 40 years of experience in accounting, taxation, and consulting services both locally and internationally
